Pirates! Alligators! Music! Children will enjoy this year's Woodstock-New Paltz Art & Crafts Fair more than ever before. The Entertainment Tent is a bonus attraction provided for the delight of fair goers as they take a break from perusing and shopping the thousands of one-of-a-kind items found throughout the Ulster County Fairgrounds this Memorial Day weekend.

At 12:00 noon Saturday, May 25th, master storyteller Jonathan Kruk will regale children and local history buffs with lively tales of Pirates on the Hudson, complete with stories, costumes and interactive skits. Kruk has been featured on The Today Show and The Travel Channel, and was selected "Best Storyteller in the Hudson Valley."

At 1:30 pm Sunday, May 26th, Erik Callender brings his wild menagerie of rescued live reptiles and amphibians from around the world. With a passion for nature and a life-long mission to inspire children and adults to enjoy and respect nature, Erik provides children (an adults!) with the opportunity to see these wonderful creatures right up close.

At 12:00 noon Monday, May 27th, Lolly Hopwood and her friends will host a fun interactive adventure blending music, games and imagination. Based in Bucks, PA, Lolly has been playing music for 8 years, has released three children's CDs and a book, toured the country, played the Philadelphia Folk Fest and was featured on Sprout's Sunny Side Up Show.

Children 12 and younger are admitted FREE to the fairgrounds. For more information, be sure to visit the Woodstock-New Paltz Art and Crafts Fair website at www.QuailHollow.com.
